BROWN GOT THE MONUMENT. And as He Had Been a Good Fellow,

the Boys Said He Deserved It. At a little settlement on the Indian river, before the railroad was built, lived a penniless, good-hearted fellow of the name of John Brown. When Brown got any money he would divide it to the last cent with his friends among the boys, and of course the boys liked him. One day the boys found Brown dead in the woods. They dug him a grave, rolled him in a horse blanket and let him down in it and then drank several bottles of East coast bitters to his health and expressed the hope that whatever new climate he was in would be healthy.

Some time later than that a stranger came among them. He died and, as the weather was too warm to ship his body off, he was buried next to Brown. A week or two passed and the relatives of the stranger sent down money to erect a monument over the grave of the stranger. The boys took the thing in hand and discussed it pro and con. They came to the conclusion that Brown was a "durned" sight better fellow in every way than the stranger and more entitled to a monument, so one night they went out and swapped the men from one grave to the other. As a result Brown, the ne'er-do-well Bohemian and all-around good fellow, sleeps beneath a handsome marble monument and the rich strauger lies in an unmarked grave.

OLD GENTLEMAN'S MISTAKE. He Pitled the Pretty Girl and She

Laughed Up Her Sleeve. She was only a typewriter girl, but she created quite an excitement in a suburban car in Louisville. When she got on the car the conductor noticed that her left sleeve dangled helplessly by her side, so he helped her on tenderly, and said to himself "Poor thing!" The passengers also observed the empty sleeve, and were visibly sympathetic, one tart-looking woman even moving a trifle to give the one-armed girl a seat. It was a very singular thing to see such a well dressed, bright girl with only one arm, and public chriosity was at a high pitch concerning the cause of the pathetic empty sleeve. Finally the afflicted maiden dropped her purse, and the old gentleman who restored it said kindly: "My dear, how did you lose your arm?"

She turned her innocent violet eyes upon him in evident surprise and the passengers all presented their ears, aching to listen. "I haven't lost any of my arms," she replied, thrusting a neatly gloved hand in sight. "I just pulled my hand up into my sleeve to get it warm.'

diplomat gracefully secured time by saying, in his most professional tones: "Just expose your foot to the atmosphere for a little while."

In Jest or Earnest?

Sergeant Kelly, a celebrity of the Irish bar, had a remarkable habit of drawing conclusions directly at varlance with his premises, and was consequently nicknamed "Counsellor Therefore." In court, on one occasion, he thus addressed the jury: "The case is so clear, gentlemen, that you cannot possibly misunderstand it, and I should pay your understandings a very poor compliment if I dwelt upon it for another minute, therefore, I shall at once proceed to explain it to you as minutely as possible."

Ostrich Eggs.

In olden times ostrich eggs were suspended in churches, the superstition being "that the ostrich, being a forgetful bird, 'leaveth her eggs in the dust,' and at length, when she beholdeth a certain star, returneth unto them, and cheereth them by her presence * * * Therefore be the aforesaid eggs suspended in churches, this signifying that man easily forgetteth God, unless being illuminated by a star, that is, by the influence of the Boly Spirit, he is reminded to return to him by good works."

What Is There for Women to Do? The champion girl of the period lives near Tacoma, Wash. From April 1 to June 1 this year she planted three acres of potatoes, did all the cooking and sewing for the family, milked the cows, fed the calves, pigs, and chickens, shot three chicken hawks and a wildcat, set the dog on eighteen tramps, attended thirteen dances and three pienics, read five dime novels, and set up five nights in the week with her beau, and yet we often hear the question asked: 'What is there for women to do?' "

Photographs of "Lip-Speech." What is regarded as the greatest triumph of the photographer was the recent successful experiment by Professor Dameny of Berlin in taking photographs of "lip-speech." By making successive negatives of the movements of the lips of a rapid talker he managed to arrange photographs printed from them in such a manner that deaf mutes who were familiar with "lip-speech" could plainly interpret every word that the speaker had uttered
